

Excalibur

Concert Lever Harp

Height : 147 cm

Weight: 13.8 kg

Range: 38 strings from C00 to A36

Stringing: C00 to D26: fluorocarbon Kürschner© for Excalibur
C27 to A36: lever harp wires

Material used: maple and beech for the body,
spruce for the soundboard

Finishes: mahogany, cherry-wood, walnut, natural or ebony

Decorated soundboard options

Plain soundboard

Excalibur

“Excalibur” is the magic sword of King Arthur – King of Brittany, and noble son of Uther Pendragon. With Excalibur in his hands, Arthur reunited and brought peace to his lands. His sword was reputed to be unbreakable, and able to cut everything. Its scabbard protected the wearer from injury. Arthur, possessing these two assets, was invincible on the battlefield. On his death, the sword was thrown into an enchanted lake by Sir Bedivere, Arthur’s faithful knight.

Many years ago, Camac Harps were proud of their Excalibur harp, for musicians in need of a powerful, unique instrument. Like the mythical sword, this harp is no longer with us.

Today, Excalibur rises again! Stronger, more beautiful, conjured by our expert craftsmen, it promises wonderful music to those who choose it.

- String tension that offers particular support, for virtuosity and exceptional precision.
- Soundboard of the highest quality spruce, with a special design for a powerful, full-bodied sound, and beautiful resonance balanced throughout the range.
- Optimal balance of frequencies inside the soundbox, for an astoundingly rich sound.

Excalibur offers a new rapport between its custom soundboard, magnificent soundbox, a range conceived for all types of music, and modern string tension. It is a musical benchmark, offering the artist an innovative new relationship with their instrument.

